Making a Budget is a conversational style presentation that students will find engaging and entertaining. At just over eight minutes long, this video has natural pause points that lets students work on their own budget, including brainstorming their own needs, wants and goals. The use of questioning, self-discovery, and self-reflection allows students to experience an inquiry-based learning approach when working through the video and participating in the activities.

Making a Budget enhances Dollars with Sense, JA's most notable financial literacy program. It's also an excellent resource that may be used with Economics for Success and Personal Finance programs or even as a standalone resource.

Making a Budget

Produced in collaboration with our partner Coast Capital Savings, this video was developed with input from instructional design experts and BC students. Be sure to add this to your toolkit!
